Newsletter of NMRA MCR Division Four

Art Bumpus, Division 4 Superintendent

On Q

Our next meeting is December 10th at Mapleside Farms (see page 5 for address and times). This will be the annual Christmas Party and Awards Banquet. If you haven't made your reservations yet, call Rich Tressa immediately so we can include you in the count. The cost of the banquet is $15.00 per person, children under the age of ten attend for free. See you there!

John Hemsath did a great job of lining up layout tours during November. Maybe I'm a little bit biased as I was hosting one of the open layouts. However, as past layout chairman, I have seen all the layouts that were on the tour and every one of them is quite interesting. John Hemsath's layout is compact by many folks' standards, but has a lot of detail, even though the completed scenery, at this time, only surrounds the perimeter of the layout. Use of false fronts buildings, craftsman buildings, catchy signage, and oh yes, the nuns walking toward the same corner as the penguins from another direction. Tom McInerney's layout has an incredible amount of detail with all the buildings and trees, dual gauge HOn3 and HO trackage. Tom Businger's layout has the makings of a very interesting multi deck layout. You should see what bench work looks like from a finish carpenter's point of view! David Lawler presented his Canadian flavored layout with expert building finesse using common scrap materials used to build everything from benchmark to quaint rural buildings. I guess you could say David is the ultimate re-cycler. I can't say too much about the other layouts, as my layout was part of the tour for that day and I couldn't get out to see them. But from second hand accounts, they were all appreciated. Welcome back to the group Brian Harko. It's been a while since his O gauge layout was last seen, before that flood from failed plumbing.

What was particularly encouraging from the layout tours was the number of questions that were asked of the layout owners about different aspects of what it takes to do the many different tasks involved with the creating of a layout, including benchwork questions, electrical questions, techniques on building structures, creating scenery, building bridges and the list goes on and on. The point is that layout tours can be a great source of education on how you can do those things that you have never attempted before, or identifying new and innovative methods of doing something that you would like to try in the future. Modelers enjoy sharing the how of what they have done so you can be successful in your endeavors. So if you want to learn something new, go on the next set of model tours. The schedule is for May of next year.

That's about all for this month. So, ...remember, never trade steam for water.

There is NO CONTEST in December to allow all our model builders to attend the Holiday Party.

The January 2011 contest will feature dioramas up to 18" square. These can be on-line or off-line subjects. Again, the possibilities are endless so have fun and good luck!

I'm still working on ideas for the second half contests. I don't want to duplicate things we've done recently so here's what I've got so far:

Feb. 2011: Small maintenance equipment, handcars, speeders (Scott Benson's November clinic), HiRailers etc.

Mar. 2011: Passenger steam locomotives

April, & May 2011: I'll come up with some subjects next month after I do a little more research.

Respectfully submitted,
Dave Lawler
Contest chairman
